Welcome to the New Jersey National Guard Training Center, Sea Girt, New Jersey

On behalf of Brigadier General Jamal J. Beale, The Adjutant General, and my staff, I wish to welcome you to the National Guard Training Center (NGTC), Sea Girt, New Jersey. First, let me provide a little background and history on this site.

The New Jersey Army National Guard traces its roots in the Militia Act passed by the first New Jersey General Assembly in 1668. The act required able-bodied men between the ages of 16 and 60 to serve in the local militia. Penalties for noncompliance were high.

The Militia Act was refined over the next century as military requirements dictated. Militiamen, sometimes called Minutemen, supplied their own weapons and uniforms, and often trained on the village green or at the home of the Company Commander, whose house often served as a rallying point in times of trouble. The colonial militia defended settlements against Indian attacks and assisted in repelling the French invasions from Canada. The New Jersey Colonial Militia participated in several joint British-Colonial excursions into Canada; they served in King George's War (1746-48) and in the French and Indian War (1756-63).

The militia organizational predecessor of the modern New Jersey Army National Guard became a state force under command of the Governor, and authorized by an Act of the Provincial Congress on June 3, 1775. This Act established the regular militia authorized by the General Assembly prior to the Revolutionary War. In 1776, the Minuteman force was dissolved and incorporated into the regular militia due to the high enlistment rate of New Jersey patriots into the Continental Army by the summer of 1776. During the Revolutionary War, the New Jersey Militia supplied Continental Army troops, suppressed Loyalist uprisings, and harassed British supply lines, making it impossible for British supply wagons to travel in the former colony without armed escorts.

The history of the National Guard Training Center (NGTC) begins with Commodore Robert Stockton. "Having recently returned from his adventures in the Mexican War as a hero", he purchased the original tract of approximately 120 acres in 1853 for $15,000.00. The Commodore built Stockton Mansion, which later became a part of the Beach House and original summer headquarters near the beach. In 1866, the Commodore sold the property for property development, and in 1870 the Sea Girt Land Improvement Company acquired the property.

NATIONAL GUARD MILITIA MUSEUM OF NEW JERSEY

Hours of Operation

Open 7 days a week 10:00 am – 3:00 pm

The National Guard Militia Museum is located in Building #66. There is also an Artillery Museum Annex in Lawrenceville, NJ. Each site has both inside and outside displays of great interest from the Revolutionary War through to today. The inside displays are extensive and consist of uniforms, memorabilia, weapons, flags, uniforms, etc. The outside displays consist of Army and Air Force vehicles, planes and helicopters.

This Museum organization consists of a mix of fulltime and volunteer staff, whose mission is to preserve and explain the military heritage of the New Jersey National Guard, enhancing public understanding of how armed conflicts and our military institutions have shaped our state and national experience.

Further, the Museum is a non-profit organization dedicated to assist in the collection, preservation and display of artifacts and related memorabilia, which has specific historical significance to the Army and Air National Guard and Naval Militia of New Jersey.

The Museum serves the public as a resource center for information on the military history of the state soldiers and veterans from colonial times to the present. As a center for U.S. War Veterans' Oral Histories, the Museum staff collects oral histories from former and retired members of the military, specifically those members of the New Jersey units.

The Artillery Annex located in Lawrenceville, New Jersey is approximately a 45 mile drive, and approximately 1 hour away. Like the Sea Girt Museum, the Annex has significantly larger displays of uniforms, memorabilia flags, weapons, etc. Further, outside of the display is quite extensive with many artillery and armored vehicles on display.

RIP CURRENTS

(Courtesy of the Sea Girt Beach Patrol)

FORMATION OF RIP CURRENTS

Most waves are formed by wind on the water. Sea waves usually result from storms, often hundreds of miles from shore. Waves are not all equal in size. Sometimes a group of larger waves comes ashore one after another. This is known as a “set” of waves. When waves break, water is pushed up the slope of the shore. Gravity pulls the water back toward the sea. If it converges in a narrow, river-like current moving away from shore, it forms what is known as a rip current. Rip currents can be 50 feet to 50 yards offshore. Some 80% of rescues by lifeguards at America’s surf beaches are due to persons being caught in rip currents. Rip currents may pull continuously but they can suddenly appear or intensify after a set of waves, or when there is a breach in an offshore sandbar. Long shore currents, inshore holes, and other bottom conditions contribute to the formation of rip currents. Inshore holes and sandbars can also greatly increase the danger of spinal injury.
